

Interview Consent and Use-of-Notes Statement

This interview is part of a short independent academic research project on residential window systems, repair, component replacement and product-life extension.

The purpose of the interview is to understand practical experiences with window maintenance, repair, spare parts, replacement decisions, reuse barriers and possible unintended consequences of circular or sustainable window strategies.

The interview will be used only for academic purposes. Depending on the participant's preference, the participant's name, organisation and project-specific information may either be anonymised or included with permission. No sensitive business information, confidential project information or personal data will be included in the final report without permission.

The interview may be conducted by phone, in person, online call or written answers. Notes may be taken during the interview. Direct quotations will only be used if they are not sensitive and if the participant has given permission. Otherwise, the answers will be paraphrased.

Before starting the interview, the participant will be asked one of the following:

For anonymised participation:

“Is it okay if I take notes and use anonymised or paraphrased insights from this interview in my academic research project?”

For named participation:

“Is it okay if I take notes and use insights from this interview in my academic research project, including your name and organisation?”
